INGRAM HELD TO GRAND JURY, WHILE COUNTY OFFICERS GO OUT TO ARREST THREE MEN CHARGED WITH SUBORNATION

Dr. Kirk Went With Ingram to Make Affidavit.

Denny Smith Heard Ingram
Make His Confession.

He Had Made it to Captain
Walker Month Before.

Clarence Dyer Was Not Present, So Judge Wells Says.

Prisoner Fails to Put Up Bond of $500.

(By Perry Melton.)

Murray, Ky., Sept. 3.—Will Ingram is in jail, held to the grand jury under bond of $500 on the charge of perjury, and county officers started this morning after Dr. Peter Kirk, Jasper Garland and Allen Weatherford, charged with subornation of perjury.

Ingram's preliminary examination was held this morning before Magistrate S. L. Holland. Ingram said that he was working in the bottoms cutting timber, being armed as usual, when Allen Weatherford and Jasper Garland approached him and compelled him to put down his gun. He said they told him that unless he published in the Murray Ledger the statement that his confession, in which he implicated Kelsie Kirk, Jasper Garland and others in the raid on Hendrick's place was false, they would kill him. That was Thursday night at the home of Dr. Peter Kirk and go into Murray the next day and make affidavit.

He said he did so, and riding into town Dr. Kirk told him what to swear to, and promised him that Kelsie Kirk nor any other night rider should injure him. He said Dr. Kirk told him to say that County Judge A. J. G. Wells and Clarence Dyer procured his confession under duress.

Attorney Randolph, who prepared the affidavit, and E. N. Holland, the notary public before whom it was made, swore that Dr. Kirk called Randolph off to the side and told him Ingram wished to make an affidavit. Randolph said Kirk proceeded to tell him what Ingram would swear to and he suggested that they let Ingram tell it himself.

Clarence Dyer is an important witness for the state, and County Judge Wells swore that Dyer was not present when Ingram made his affidavit of confession, but that, Commonwealth's Attorney Denny Smith was.

Both Judge Wells and Captain Henderson swore that Ingram had made the same confession in detail to Captain Walker, of the state militia, at Otter Pond.

Jasper Garland and Allen Weatherford were brought in this afternoon and Judge Wells fixed their bonds at $1,000 each. They probably will make bond at once. Dr. Peter Kirk was not at home, but may come in when he learns he is wanted.

Rules for Public Safety.

The mayor has issued a proclamation, setting forth rules for public safety. Heretofore it has been customary to shoot guns in case of fire, but citizens think of night riders, when they hear the fusillade, and remain at home, crippling the efforts of the volunteer firemen. Hereafter blowing whistles and ringing bells will be the signal, accompanied by loud cries of fire.

The mayor says when citizens hear firing they may know night riders and soldiers are engaged in battle, and remain at home. He suggests that citizens fire from their homes, only taking care to distinguish night riders from citizens and soldiers.

Two lawyers this afternoon selected Judge John S. O. Kelly, of Bardonia, to sit in the case.

SCHOOL OPENING TAKES UP TIME OF SUPERINTENDENT

At this time of the year Superintendent J. A. Carnagey has found that it is difficult to get competent male teachers for the public schools. For the vacancy in the High school caused by the resignation of Prof. C. O. Peratt, no successor has been secured. Superintendent Carnagey received a telegram from one teacher saying that he would accept the place for $80 a month, but the board had authorized a salary of only $75 a month, and the teacher must be a college graduate. Professor Peratt, who taught last year, has accepted a position in the Nicholasville High school at a good increase in salary. Prof. C. H. Ebreve, formerly teacher in science, has accepted a position in the Dubuque (Ia.) High school with a handsome increase in salary. Professor Carnagey has corresponded with several teachers' employment agencies, but all the mail applicants have secured positions. Several women teachers have applied for the position, but the school board wants a man to have charge of the boys and some of the women applicants are not qualified to fill the place.

Many children are applying to Superintendent Carnagey for entrance cards and he wishes all parents who are entering young children to go to the office before the opening of school, which will be September 14. Prof. Carnagey is at his office every morning from 8 until 12 o'clock and will issue the cards. All applicants must have been vaccinated successfully. There will be many new children to enter, and it is doubtful if there will be any decrease in the number of pupils.

Few of the regular teachers have begun to arrive yet to resume their work in the school. For fear that some will overlook the physical examination, Superintendent Carnagey is mailing post cards for them to be here in time to be examined.

Bryan Club Branch

The branch of the Bryan club will be organized formally tonight at the corner of Short and Clements streets in Mechanicsburg. Hon. John K. Hendrick will be the speaker of the evening, and the speaking feast will begin at 7:30 o'clock. Police Judge D. A. Cross, County Attorney Alben Barkley and Councilman R. J. Wilson have arranged an interesting program.

Gardner Held

Murray, Ky., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Ed Gardner, colored, was held to the grand jury today under bond of $500 on the charge of stealing the grip of Conductor Charles Lee Hunt, of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, at the station here. The case was worked up by Detective T. J. Moore, of Paducah, the evidence was convincing. Gardner went to jail in default of bond.

Home Made Aeroplane

Patrolmen Bryant and Roush Are Dropped From Police Force This Morning on Charges of the Chief

Man on Duty at Union Station
Relieves Paducahan of His Revolver—Bryant Makes Startling Confession.

On charges of neglect of duty, Patrolman John Bryant and Jake Roush were dismissed from the police department this morning by the board of fire and police commissioners. It is said that Bryant made a confession, and said that he had been a party to holding up people and dividing the money. The charge which resulted in the dismissal was brought up by the patrolmen taking a pistol from two young men at the Union station Sunday night. One was a traveling man from Mayfield. Bryant admitted that he took a pistol from the young man.

Sunday night two young men and two girls were sitting across the track from the Union station waiting for the early morning train that went to Mayfield. Patrolmen Bryant and Roush met all trains at the station, and they went across the tracks near the curve. Patrolman Bryant, it is said, made the statement that the man had the gun concealed and that he confiscated it, while he claimed his partner, Jake Roush, said he would take $5. The witness denied that he had the pistol concealed, and Patrolman Roush denied that he received any money. Also the man denied that he gave the policeman any money. After the men were laid off, Patrolman Bryant turned the pistol over to Chief Collins. They were suspended from duty last night and Chief Collins called for a meeting of the commissioners this morning at 9 o'clock. After the evidence the commissioners decided to release both men from the department for neglect of duty.

Patrolman Bryant was seen this morning, and he recited the story of running upon the men and girls, and said he took the pistol from the man, but he believed that the gun was not concealed. For an officer of the law not to arrest a man or swear out a warrant against a person carrying a pistol concealed, the state statute provides a fine of $100 and the dismissal from duty.

BOARDWALK MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP BY ANTE-MORTEM STATEMENT OF VICTIM

Guilty Person is Under Surveillance of the Police.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 3.—The assailant of Charles Roberts is known and has been known since the night the Baltimore banker and clubman was shot down on the board walk while in company with Mrs. W. G. S. Williams, of that city. The person who identified his would-be slayer was Roberts himself in an ante-mortem statement. The revolver with which the shooting was done has been located. The man who shot Roberts is technically under arrest.

Before making his statement Mr. Roberts exacted a pledge from the hospital physicians and detectives representing the police department that no action would be taken in the event of his recovery.

Howard Lewis, a negro chair pusher, said: "Jackson told me that while he was wheeling Mrs. Williams and Mr. Roberts up the board walk they were followed a short distance by a man and a woman. Then the man approached the chair and spoke to Mr. Roberts and the latter got out. Mr. Roberts and the man walked behind Jackson and the woman followed a few paces back."

Then Mr. Roberts left the man and got back in the chair with Mrs. Williams. The man followed, and, reaching inside the chair, got Mr. Roberts by the coat collar and yanked him out of the chair.

"Mr. Roberts, in his anger, desperately attacked the man with his fists, and the man office. After once dismissed the officer is never eligible for reinstatement.

Patrolman Bryant has been on the force since January 1, and it is his second time "on the carpet," as he was given a several days' layoff in the spring for being asleep on duty. Patrolman Jake Roush has been on the police force about five years.

It is said that Patrolman Bryant made the statement in the investigation, which was held behind closed doors, that patrolmen on that beat held up people as they dismounted from the trains, and that he received half of the money to keep from getting the "horse laugh."

He said he had seen enough of that sort of thing, and that he had accepted his share of the money and spent it.

Knights Templar at Fulton.

Temperance Rally

The temperance rally at the Chattanooga auditorium at Wallace park was well attended today as representatives from the county and city responded. A strong address on "Problems of the Liquor Traffic" was delivered this morning by Mr. J. W. West, superintendent of the Kentucky Anti-Saloon league. This afternoon Mrs. Nannie Curtis responded with a fine address on the general principles of temperance. All of the members enjoyed dinner at the park, and a pleasant day was spent. This evening at the Broadway Methodist church, both speakers will give addresses on the temperance movement.

School Board Vacancies

As the general election will be held in November, the members of the school board will not select any men to fill the vacancies in the board caused by the resignations of Trustees J. C. Farley and H. C. Morris. Should two trustees be selected they would only serve one regular meeting, and taking the oath of office would be more trouble than that.

er of Their Rest When Terrible Casualty Occurs.

Murray, Ky., Sept. 3.—(Special.)—Mistaking her for a night rider, John Franklin Dalton, a mill man residing on the Tennessee river in Calloway county, shot and killed his wife the night of September 1.

The couple, who were married a month ago at Princeton, recently moved here from Repton, and they probably were being investigated, as newcomers usually are in the night rider section, that night. They heard growls about the premises and both got up to investigate. Mr. Dalton had his revolver, a 32-caliber gun. A search of the house revealed no intruder, but footsteps of some one running were heard in the yard when a light was struck. Mr. Dalton told his wife to go back to bed and he went into the yard.

He supposed Mrs. Dalton had done as he said, but she evidently feared for the safety of her husband, for she stepped out the back door just as her husband reached a shadow at the side of the house.

FOOTBALL

OFFICIAL OPENING FOR "BIG EIGHT" COMES SEPTEMBER 21.

Advantages in New Rules Leaves More Inventiveness of Player Than Old Forms.

September will mark the official opening of the football practice for the "big eight" colleges, although many of the players have been shaping up at their various summer retreats. This date comes much later than the opening day of the other colleges throughout the country owing to the conference ruling. In the east the first games will be played before this time, Sept. 19 being the day of the first game.

As yet it is too early to even try to form an idea of the comparative strength of the teams in this section of the country, as the coaches themselves do not know just what material they will have on hand to pick an eleven from. Many of the regulars who at the close of last season signified their intention of returning to college have now changed their plans and will not return to take part in the game.

The new rules, with their numerous possibilities, furnish the coaches with plenty of food for thought, and the majority of them have spent many hours, since last fall thinking up new plays which they hope will defeat their rivals. Never before has football presented so many chances for the coaches to show their true worth. In the old game there were set plays which were used by every eleven, it was no trick to make a team proficient in them. The coach had simply to give the team its signals, the plays the signals called for, where they went, how the linemen were to charge, and what men the interfere was supposed to take off. Most of this the player knew before he came to college because of his preparatory school experience.

Different Proposition Now. Now it is different. The coach must think up new plays which are suited to his team. If he has a fast, shifty backfield, with an average line and a good quarter back who can throw the ball at any angle and from any position, he can invent numerous plays of the open variety with the forward pass and the inside kick playing the most prominent parts. On the other hand, if his team be composed of slower and less shifty men, he will have to revert to the old style game as much as possible, with enough of the new game sprinkled in to keep the other team guessing.

There are many matters which a coach must turn his attention to the moment the candidates come out in the field. One is a kicker, both of the drop or place and the punt. The other is a man who can throw the ball accurately. Numerous games were won last year because some team had a player who had the faculty of booting the ball over the crossbar at opportune times. The most striking examples of this in the west were the performances of Capron, the Minnesota star. Almost unaided he tied up the game with Wisconsin with his drop kicks after it appeared to be apparently lost, and he scored all the points the Gophers made against Chicago in the game for the western championship, besides making many other goals in smaller games which helped swell the score for his team.

Value of the Punter. The punter under the old rules was a most important asset to any team, but his services are needed more under the new regime. It was a frequent saying that this team or that team would play a kicking game in some contest because they had a good punter. Why shouldn't they play a kicking game? It saves the kicker's team much physical energy, at the same time taking the heart out of the opponents whose forty or fifty yards of hard gained ground is lost by one single boot of the kicker on the other team.

The alteration in the new rule that states that the player who first touched the ball on the forward pass must recover it, providing it did not touch an opponent, will put a premium on the man who can throw the pigskin with almost the same accuracy as the ball player throws the horsehide. Even last season, in the majority of cases, it was a hard matter even for the player to touch the ball who was supposed to receive it, and after touching it he seldom recovered it. It was simply a scramble after the time it was legally touched, and the luck element entered into the game to a considerable extent.

Now the plays will have to be carefully planned. The man who is to receive the ball will have to be gotten out in the open by means of some sort of strategy, where he will be free from interference. The player who throws the ball will have to be protected more to allow him time to fix the ball in his hand to throw it with some degree of accuracy.

Benefit of New Rules. The new rules will be of greater benefit to the players, as they will not go out on the field in that mechanical way which characterized the old teams. The players must assume responsibility, for in a great measure they will be thrown on their own resources. Of course the coach will outline a defense for his team which he hopes will meet the opponents' offense, but this cannot be done definitely as there are so many plays that one set style of defense will not meet. This the players will have to solve themselves. They will have to adapt themselves to the existing conditions and this will make them be on the alert at all times, expecting to meet any kind of a play.

The west presents the best schedule this season since the adoption of the new rules. The only regrettable feature in the listing of games is that the Chicago-Cornell and the Michigan-Pennsylvania games come on the same date, thus depriving devotees of the pastime an opportunity of witnessing both contests. Of course, Michigan will not play any of the "Big Eight" colleges, its big game being with Pennsylvania on Nov. 14 at Ann Arbor.

Chicago Has Hard Schedule. Chicago has the best and hardest schedule of any of the conference teams, but is restricted by the faculty from playing seven games, six being allowed by the distinguished gentlemen. The western champions will play but one game of their own grounds, and that with Wisconsin at Madison on Nov. 21.

Northwestern again will enter the field after an absence of two years and will play three games. This will tend to promote local interest in the great college pastime. Little is known of the prospects at the Methodist institution, as it is without a football captain, and the real worth of the men in college who intend to try for the team cannot be learned. It is hoped that the Purple will have a team which will be able to make a creditable showing in its contests, as there is little incentive to the players or students taking an active part in the game unless they win or come close to a victory.

Chicago, the western champions, will open the season on Saturday, Oct. 3, with Purdue. The Maroons' big game will be with Cornell on Nov. 14 at Marshall field. Nothing definite can be ascertained as yet as to the prospects of the easterners, but undoubtedly they will come west determined to take the measure of the westerners.

Gophers-Maroons on Oct. 31. Coach Williams of Minnesota doubtless will have his team more versed in the new game this season than last, when he lost the championship because he depended too much on the old game. Minnesota will journey to Chicago on Oct. 31 to play the Maroons in an endeavor to take the championship back to Minneapolis, which at the present time seems doubtful, as Williams has lost not only Capron but many other veterans. Minnesota's big home game will be with the Carlisle Indians on Nov. 21.

There will be many intersectional contests this season. Chicago, Michigan and Minnesota meeting Cornell, Pennsylvania, and the Carlisle Indians respectively, while Michigan will go east to Syracuse. The Wolverines will also meet Vanderbilt, the champions of the south. St. Louis university will meet the Carlisle Indians at St. Louis on Thanksgiving day.

The Referendum Rejected. The rejection of the referendum by the International Typographical Union is interesting. It is evidence that the so-called popular reforms are not all recognized as cardinal principles of trade unionism. Important issues relating to the Typographical Union will continue to be determined by the combinations. And the interests of the individual membership will continue to be equitably served, as are the interests of the people under a representative form of government.—Boston Herald.

The Two Babies. The infant of the household was in its cradle. The head of the house was at home, peevish and fault-finding. At length he became unendurable.

SEES BIG CROP

SECRETARY DECLARES ALL STATES ARE ASSURED.

Cabinet Official Thinks G. O. P. Nominée Will Carry All States Roosevelt Did.

Washington, Sept. 3.—"The farmers of the west are happy, and they have a right to be," said Secretary Wilson upon his return from an extensive tour beyond the Mississippi. "The sun has shone upon them, rains have been sufficient and with the best soil on earth the best farmers too be found anywhere made the most of it. The yields are large. There will be no shortage of any crop. Of the staples there will be enough to supply all home demands and leave a large surplus for exportation. The farmers still have some of last year's crop on hand, and this they will sell at the prevailing high prices. The new crops will soon be moving in the direction of the markets and when our wheat and corn of this year's growth start east in volume there will be a flood of wealth in the west.

"Our farmers no longer live under the burden of heavy mortgages. Their great prosperity in recent years has rendered them independent in the sense that they are not forced to sell. They are able to hold their crops for favorable markets, and are therefore obtaining their fair share of profits. The farmers of the west have not to this day realized that there was less than twelve months ago a depression which has been followed by a slackening of the wheels of prosperity.

Farmers Prevent Panic. "They have, of course, read the newspapers and are well informed concerning conditions, but they have experienced no setback in their wonderful prosperity. The slackened buying demand has not affected them at all; and being the backbone and sinew of our material progress as a nation, they have literally prevented any prolonged depression. Our farmers are producing so much wealth that it is impossible for our commercial and business affairs to experience a material setback. "In the west in other industries there is a marked improvement in conditions. Business in all lines has improved substantially during the last few months and the onward

March of prosperity has been resumed with such strides that the movement will be at accelerated speed.

"Our farmers have not only enjoyed good crop conditions during the season now closing, but they are producing more per acre than ever before. There has been a notable increase in the productivity of the soil due to the observation of methods urged by the department for increasing fertility, to the use of better seeds and to better cultivation.

Wants Resources Kept. "I find, however, that the movement for the preservation of our national resources has not been inaugurated any too soon. In some of the western states I visited the destruction of the forests is already telling upon our industries. For a time some question was raised as to the effect of the destruction of our forests upon our water supply. Now no one denies that the freshets in the spring and the drying up of the streams in summer are directly due to the cause. In Colorado two of the big beet sugar factories have been closed because of the shortage of water supply. The streams of the mountains have disappeared with the destruction of the forests and now only dry gulches mark their former courses. The restoration of our forest, which will result from the movement now afoot, will correct these conditions.

"My time was devoted exclusively to agricultural affairs, but

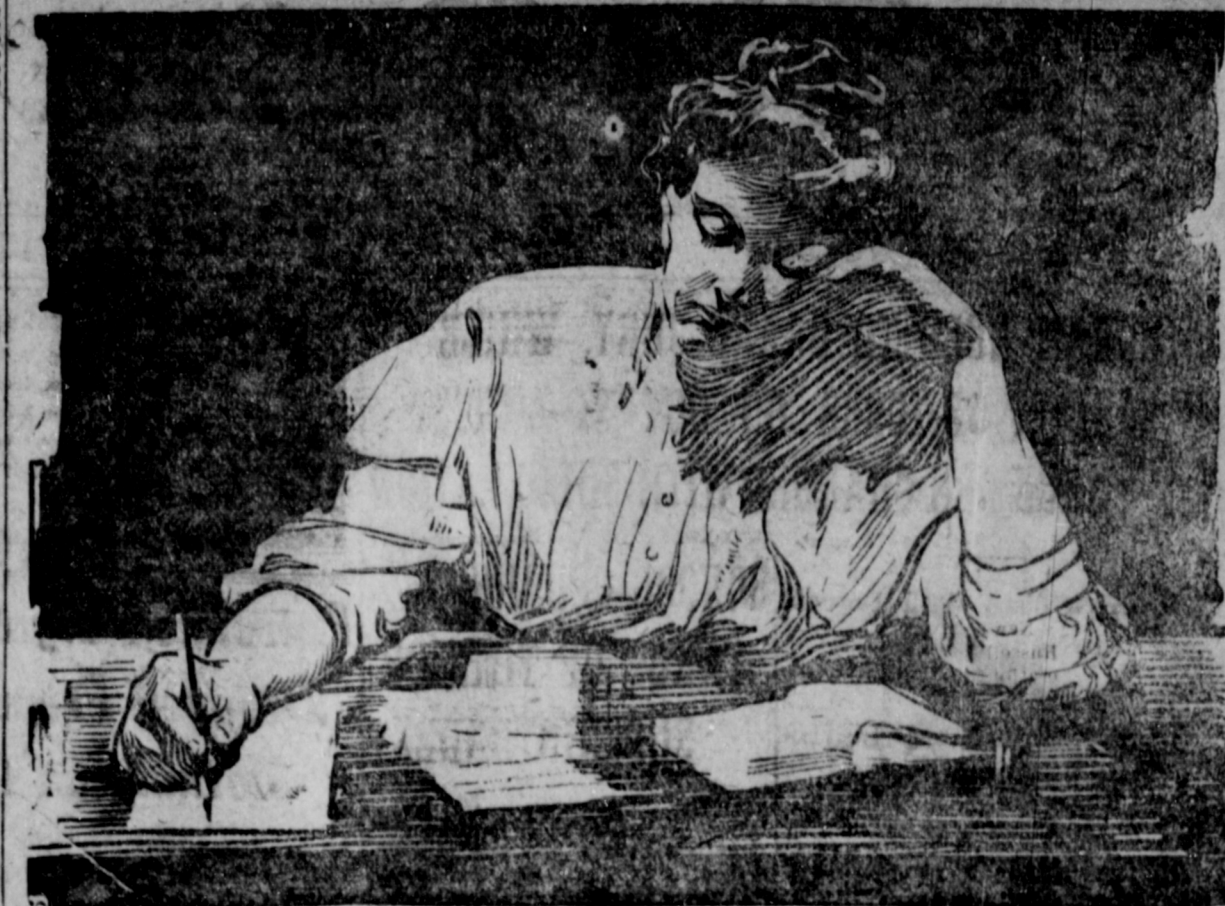

AN OLD SAYING. Showing How Cause and Effect Are Never Far Removed.

It is an old saying "Where there's honey there's bees"—not less true is one which science has coined more recently, "Where there's Dandruff there's germs"—and to push the inference still further we may truly say "Where there's Dandruff cured Newbro's Herpicide has been at work."

The reason of Herpicide isolation as a genuine cure for Dandruff lies in the fact that it attacks and destroys the root of the whole trouble—a parasitic germ which feeds upon the material which nourishes the hair follicle.

Other so-called remedies are not directed at this true cause of the disease.

RUSSELL SAGE IS PROPERTY STUNG

Worthless Securities Representing Millions Found.

How He Allowed Himself to Be Loaded Up With Such Paper is Mystery.

VICTIM OF SOME SHREWD MEN

New York, Sept. 3.—Although Russell Sage was held up to his generation as a model of caution and astuteness in his stock and bond dealings and in his loan business, it was disclosed that shrewd men succeeded in loading him up with about $1,071,000, par value, of bonds and 18,100 shares of stock and scrip which are worthless. Besides, there are some "open accounts" upon which the executors can realize little or nothing.

Mining shares, railroad, bank and trust company issues, shares in warehouse and grain elevator concerns, a railroad construction company and firms, industrial concerns and steel companies, improvement shares, electric railroad stock, land grant scrip, defaulted state bonds of Georgia and North Carolina and defaulted town bonds are among the securities found in Mr. Sage's safe deposit vaults.

Mr. Sage's stock and bond register was kept by Charles W. Osborne, confidential man during Mr. Sage's lifetime, and now one of his three executors.

Reminders of Old Crazes.

The securities of nominal value owned by Mr. Sage comprise a sort of index to the periodic financial spasms that have swept over the United States since civil war times. The defaulted state bonds are a reminder of the era when the federal government, the commonwealths and lesser political entities issued their paper to provide funds for railroad building. The worthless rolling mill securities were put out during a craze for rolling steel rails. Grain elevators were an old-time favorite investment. Railroad shares are remnants of foreclosures which wiped out the equity behind the shares.

There are listed $60,000 of North Carolina bonds, some issued to promote railroad construction, and some antebellum paper of that commonwealth. There are $146,000 of Georgia 7 per cent gold bonds due in 1894, upon which the unpaid interest is equal to or greater than the principal. These bonds have been repudiated by the states. Whether Mr. Sage bought them at their face value or had them left on his hands as collateral for unpaid notes, or bought them at a fraction of their face value in the speculative expectation that the courts might some day compel payment, is conjectural.

Won By Name of Gould.

Fifty shares of the Produce Exchange Trust company's provisional receipts have a nominal value, according to the appraisement. After it was organized the trust company's $2,500,000 of capital and $2,500,000 of surplus became tied up in syndicate loans, time loans, etc. Edwin Gould and the late General Samuel Thomas reopened the company, but the provisional receipts merely represented so many certificates of past years of indebtedness. The trust company has since been merged with another. Mr. Sage's subscription to its shares was probably induced by the name of the son of his old friend, Jay Gould.

Nineteen shares of the Marshall Consolidated company have a value of $2.85.

The Tradesman's bank and New York wool warehouse went down together about ten years ago. Mr. Sage had 500 shares of the bank stock and 200 shares of the warehouse stock.

Stock in Wrecked Road.

Two railroads have been sold by the executors since Mr. Sage died, on July 22, 1906. One was a favorite possession of the financier, although he had to make up a deficit yearly to keep it in operation. It was the Poughkeepsie and Eastern. At one time Mr. Sage scared the Vanderbilts by threatening to connect this and the New York and Northern, now the Putnam division of the New York Central, and by crossing the Poughkeepsie bridge, give the Erie an entrance to Manhattan. Mr. Sage owned all the $500,000 of bonds and $500,000 of stock of the Poughkeepsie and Eastern and the executors sold the road for $350,000.

The financier was president of the Minnesota Railway Construction company, which built a line which the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul gobbled up. The construction company went into the hands of a receiver. There are $26,000 of bills payable owing the company and it has title to 28,449 acres of land and some day the estate may get a dividend from the receiver.

The Albia and Centerville railway in Iowa is operated at a loss, while the stockholders await a purchaser. Mr. Sage had 2,130 shares listed at $5. It appears that he had to take them on foreclosure of a loan.

GAINS STRENGTH; BUSINESS TALKS

Taft is Winning Votes in Can- did Discussion of Real Issue.

Walter Wellman Says People Are Learning Candidate Is Not Echo of Roosevelt.

THE STUMPING TOUR IS URGED.

Washington, Sept. 3.—That Judge Taft is rapidly gaining strength as a candidate is the prevailing opinion in the east. He is growing in popular favor, says Walter Wellman. His friends here at the capital were delighted with his appearance "on the stump" the other day in Ohio, when he spoke with such remarkable frankness and effectiveness to several audiences during his journey from Hot Springs to the fishing islands of Lake Erie. Most of Mr. Taft's friends think he should do more of this sort of thing. They want him to travel about the country, meet the people and talk to them. They believe if he does he will greatly strengthen his cause. As an orator he is not, of course, a match for Mr. Bryan. But ordinary men never yet won a presidential battle. Bryan himself realizes that. In his past campaigns he sought to charm the people with his eloquence. Now he is discussing business questions in a business-like way. The people are thinking about business questions and want to be talked to in this line. In this field Taft is at least the equal of Bryan. He has that greatest of all gifts, hard sense, fine judgment, immunity from rattles and tins. And the more he travels and talks, his friends argue the better he will be understood and liked by the masses of the people.

It is not denied that for some weeks after the Chicago convention there was in the east, at least, an undertone of prejudice against Judge Taft, springing from the belief that he was a mere echo of Roosevelt; that he was "not his own man," that he could not have been nominated but for the president's aid, and that he is only a stalking horse for the man at Oyster Bay. Curiously enough, many men who like Roosevelt, and would vote for him if he were to run again, felt lukewarm toward Taft because of this belief that he was only the president's shadow. Now this feeling is largely wearing away. It never was entertained by men who knew the facts, who knew Taft himself, who were familiar with the strength of his character, his independence of mind. But the men who did entertain are beginning to perceive that he is his own man and a strong one at that. The more speeches Taft makes, the more frankly, and pluckily he talks, the less will there be of this mistaken notion that he is overshadowed by another. Taft's frank talk on the labor and injunction questions and his plain, blunt denial of the foolish story that he once said $1 a day was wages enough for a working man, has done him more good than his more labored and pretentious efforts.

MORE MEN

WANTER BY UNIONS ON RAILROADS NOT MORE MONEY.

Boilermakers, Machinists and Blacksmiths Confer at St. Louis Meeting.

St. Louis, Sept. 3.—Every railroad lying between and including the Illinois Central and the Union Pacific is represented in the joint conference of the International Association of Machinists, the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Bridge Builders and the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, in session in St. Louis. After meeting separately the three bodies came together in a joint meeting at Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue. The bodies held their meeting at the Hotel James, while the machinists and blacksmiths met at the Laclede hotel. After separate sessions, followed by a joint meeting, the conference will adjourn.

James O'Connell, president of the machinists, said at the Southern hotel that the conference is an annual affair of the three organizations and is held for the purpose of talking over conditions. The railroads, he said, have been running on short time and short-handed and the conference is designed to better the condition of the members of the organizations of this can be brought about. The question of wages does not enter directly into the conference, but the question of securing the employment of more men by the railroads is of interest to the three organizations, which comprise the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

The average man's idea of economy is to sell his wife how to save money.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

County Court Clerk.
 The Sun is authorized to announce Hiram Smedley a candidate for re-election to the office of Clerk of the McCracken County Court subject to the action of the Democratic party.
 City Jailor.
 The Sun is authorized to announce Wade Brown a candidate for re-election to the office of city jailor, subject to the action of the Republican party.

Daily Thought.
 There are none so blind as those who imagine they see it all.

Murray is on the eve of a building boom.

Have you noticed the new showing of fall head wear in the clothing store windows, and then blushed under your straw hat?

Mechanicsburg is coming into her own. The national administration has granted the citizens of that busy section a sub-station of the postoffice, and now it is proposed to establish a sub-Bryan club.

FOR THE HONOR OF OUR TOWN.
 We know no reason why a citizen, who really is interested in the election of William Jennings Bryan this fall, should not contribute toward the national fund, providing he has confidence that the fund will be used for the legitimate expenses of the campaign. Paducahans know Mr. Urey Woodson, who twice has been honored with the secretaryship of the national committee; most of us have heard of Norman Mack, of Buffalo, and Mr. Mose Wetmore, the prominent St. Louis tobacco manufacturer, whose names are one of the constituent corporations of the American Tobacco company, has a reputation for business sagacity and honesty that no one can asperse. These gentlemen need no certificates of character, and if the local agency, which is striving to make a showing with its collection, is not so well known, that should not be allowed to interfere with a man's sense of political obligation. Our only interest in this matter is concerned with the statement made at a recent meeting of the Bryan club that an Owensboro paper raised $1,100 in four hours, while a Paducah paper succeeded only in raising $71.50 in 30 days. Personally we decline to consider this as reflecting in the least degree on the comparative financial readiness of the two cities; there are too many other reasons which may be ascribed; but if Paducah's reputation is remotely involved, the Sun will take a hand and raise that fund in a jiffy.

THE RESULT IN VERMONT.
 The Sun today publishes for the benefit of those who love to watch the political straws, all the data on Vermont elections, which take place the first Tuesday in September. The relation of the Vermont state election to the national election following can be no more than that of coincidence, and the fact that a normal Republican majority there presages a Republican victory at the polls, can be accepted as verily only this far:

If there was a big Republican slump that might be an indication of the unfavorable attitude of the country generally toward the administration, assuming that general conditions affect all voters of the same party alike. The country normally is Republican, and nothing but a landslide, of course, can elect the Democratic ticket. The Republican managers figure that if there was a landslide impending, indication of it might be expected in the Vermont election, which could not help being affected somewhat by any apathy apparent in the national campaign.

From the days of the Hayes-Tilden campaign in 1876 to the last presidential campaign, 1904, it has been the unvarying rule that a Republican plurality of more than 25,000 in the gubernatorial election in Vermont in the presidential year has been followed by a Republican success in a decisive number of the doubtful states in November, and winning or retaining control of the house of representatives and the election of the Republican candidate for the presidency.

In a similar manner a drop in Vermont's Republican plurality in September below the 25,000 mark has always been the precursor of a swing of the doubtful states to the Democracy and the consequent choice of a Democratic house of representatives and a Democratic president.

The nearer the Republican plurality has approximated the 25,000 mark in Vermont the closer, as a rule, has been the national election.

The sharper the dip of the index on the political barometer above or below this amount the greater has been the Republican or Democratic sweep in the entire country. In every instance in these eight elections violent slumps or abnormal increases of Vermont's Republican plurality have been the certain sign that there were political disorders in the nation's blood that must come out at the polls.

Vermont's Republican plurality Tuesday was over 29,000. The following table shows previous Republican pluralities:

Year	Sept.	Nov.	President
1876	22,735	24,078	Hayes
1880	26,603	27,251	Garfield
1884	22,702	22,183	Cleveland
1888	28,995	28,405	Harrison
1892	19,702	31,667	Cleveland
1896	38,391	40,490	McKinley
1900	31,312	29,719	McKinley
1904	30,682	30,682	Roosevelt

No doubt when he sees all those other circuit judges vacating the bench on the least intimation that someone remotely suspects they might inadvertently fail to do exact justice in a given case, Judge Cook, of the Third district feels like a man who has denied himself to save the governor the trouble of appointing judges to try all those night rider cases.

Naturally Senator Foraker must take pride in the fact that he was first to discover Judge Taft politically.

John J. Jenkins, the old reactionary, who was defeated for re-nomination in his district in Wisconsin, based his claims on the fact that he never scratched the ticket from Lincoln to Roosevelt. It takes more than a clear record as a yellow dog partisan to win these days.

SENT UP FOR $5 HE DIDN'T GET.
 Gov. Cox Pardons Roy Williams After It Was Shown.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 3.—A $5 bill hidden for several months in the band of an old pair of trousers, caused Roy Williams to be sent to the penitentiary here and also caused his release. Gov. Cox late this afternoon pardoned Williams, who was serving a sentence of two years upon conviction of the charge of robbery.

In a poker game one night Williams was a player. One of the players lost a $5 bill and accused Williams of stealing it. He had Williams indicted and convicted. Williams began the service of his sentence, but protested all the time that he was innocent. Several weeks ago the man who lost the bill found it in the trousers which he wore the night of the poker game and which he had not had on since that game. These facts were presented to the acting governor and he issued a pardon to Williams.

CONFESSES TO EXTORTION PLOT
 Youth Who Threatened Forty-Six Farmers in Indiana Arrested.

Columbus, Ind., Sept. 3.—Edward Nall, a farmer residing twelve miles north of here, yesterday found a letter in his home signed "Black Hand" and addressed to him. His nephew, Earl Stitt, is now in jail here, having confessed to writing the letter. The letter stated that if Nall did not give $500 and get the same amount from each of forty-five other well-to-do farmers whose names were mentioned, and deposit the money in a place designated, the families would be killed, their homes burned up and their barns burned. Sheriff Cox suspected Stitt and wrung a confession from him. Stitt is 20 years of age and married.

Larceny Charge.
 Leon Clark, colored, was arrested on a charge of petit larceny, last night by Patrolmen Emery and Barber. Clark is alleged to have robbed the watermelon patch of Edward Terrell, near the city limits in the northern part of the city. Clark's trial in police court was continued until September 4 this morning in police court.

Chapter XIV

AN ENFORCED INTERVIEW.

MONSIEUR CHAUVENET.

Armitage uncovered smilingly. Chauvenet stared mutely at Armitage paused with his back to the Claiborne gate. Chauvenet was dressed with his usual care and wore the latest carnation in the lapel of his top coat. He struck the ground with his stick, his look of astonishment passed, and he smiled pleasantly as he returned Armitage's salutation. "My dear Armitage!" he murmured. "I didn't go to Mexico, after all, nor good Chauvenet. The place is full of fever. I couldn't take the risk."

"He is indeed a wise man who safeguards his health," replied the other. "You are quite right. And when one has had many narrow escapes one may be excused for exercising rather particular care. Do you not find it so?" mocked Armitage.

"My dear fellow, my life is one long fight against evil. Danger, excitement, the hazard of my precious life—such pleasures of late have been denied me."

"But you are young and of intrepid spirit, monsieur. It would be quite surprising if some perilous adventure did not overtake you before the silver gets in your hair."

"Ah! I assure you the speculation interests me, but I must trouble you to let me pass," continued Chauvenet in the same tone. "I shall quite forget that I set out to make a call if I linger longer in your charming society."

"But I must ask you to delay your call for the present. I shall greatly value your company down the road a little way. It is a trifling favor, and you are a man of delightful courtesy."

Chauvenet twisted his mustache reflectively. His mind had been busy seeking means of turning the meeting to his own advantage. He had met Armitage at quite the least inauspicious spot in the world for an encounter between them, and he was not a man who enjoyed surprises. He had taken care that the exposure of Armitage at Washington should be telegraphed to every part of the country and put upon the cables. He had expected Armitage to leave Washington, but he had no idea that he would turn up at a fashionable resort greatly affected by Washingtonians and only a comparatively short distance from the capital. He was at a great disadvantage in not knowing Armitage's plans and strategy. His own mind was curiously cunning, and his reasoning powers traversed oblique lines. He was thus prone to impute similar mental processes to other people. Simplicity and directness he did not understand at all. He had underrated Armitage's courage and daring; he wished to make no further mistakes, and he walked back toward the hotel with apparent good grace.

Armitage spoke now in a very different key, and the change displeased Chauvenet, for he much affected ironical raillery, and his companion's sterner tones disconcerted him.

"I take this opportunity to give you a solemn warning, M. Jules Chauvenet, alias Rambaud, and thereby render you a greater service than you know. You have undertaken a deep and dangerous game. It is spectacular, it is picturesque, it is immense! It is so stupendous that the taking of a few lives seems trifling in comparison with the end to be obtained. Now look about you for a moment, M. Jules Chauvenet! In this mountain air a man may grow very sane and see matters very clearly. London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna—they are a long way off, and the things they stand for lose their splendor when a man sits among these American mountains and reflects upon the pettiness and sordidness of man's common ambitions."

"Is this exordium or peroration, my dear fellow?"

"It is both," replied Armitage succinctly, and Chauvenet was sorry he had spoken, for Armitage stopped short in a lonely stretch of the highway and continued in a disagreeable, incisive tone:

"I ran away from Washington after you told that story at Claiborne's supper table, not because I was afraid of your accusation, but because I wanted to watch your plans a little in security. The only man who could have helped me immediately was Senator Sander-son, and I knew that he was in Montana."

Chauvenet smiled with a return of assurance.

"Of course. The hour was chosen well."

"More wisely, in fact, than your choice of that big assassin of yours. He's a clumsy fellow, with more brains than brains. I had no trouble in shaking him off in Boston, where you probably advised him I should be taking the Montreal express."

Chauvenet blinked. This was precisely what he had told Znai to expect. He shifted from one foot to another and wondered just how he was to escape from Armitage. He had gone to Storm Springs to be near Shirley Claiborne, and he deeply resented having business thrust upon him.

"He is a wise man who wields the knife himself, M. Chauvenet. In the taking of poor Count von Stroebel's life so deftly and secretly you prove my philosophy. It was a clever job, monsieur!"

Chauvenet's gloved fingers caught at his mustache.

"That is almost insulting, M. Armitage. A distinguished statesman is killed, therefore I must have murdered him. You forget that there's a difference between us. You are an unknown adventurer carried on the books of the police as a fugitive from justice, and I can walk to the hotel and get twenty reputable men to vouch for me. I advise you to be careful not to mention my name in connection with Count von Stroebel's death."

He had begun jauntily, but closed in heat, and when he finished Armitage nodded to signify that he understood perfectly.

"A few more deaths, and you would be in a position to command tribute from a high quarter, monsieur."

"Your mind seems to turn upon assassination. If you know so much about Stroebel's death it's unfortunate that you left Europe at a time when you might have rendered important aid in finding the murderer. It's a bit suspicious, M. Armitage! It is known at the Hotel Monte Rosa in Geneva that you were the last person to enjoy an interview with the venerable statesman. You see I am not dull, M. Armitage!"

"You are not dull, Chauvenet. You are only shortsighted. The same witnesses know that John Armitage was at the Hotel Monte Rosa for twenty-four hours following the count's departure. Meanwhile where were you, Jules Chauvenet?"

Chauvenet's hand again went to his face, which whitened, though he sought refuge again in flippancy irony.

"To be sure! Where was I, monsieur? Undoubtedly you know all my movements, so that it is unnecessary for me to have any opinions in the matter."

"Quite so! Your opinions are not of great value to me, for I employed agents to trace every move you made during the month in which Count von Stroebel was stabbed to death in his railway carriage. It is so interesting that I have committed the record to memory. If the story would interest you?"

The hand that again sought the slight mustache trembled slightly, but Chauvenet smiled.

"You should write the memoirs of your very interesting career, my dear fellow. I cannot listen to your babble longer."

"I do not intend that you shall, but your whereabouts on Monday night, March 18, of this year may need explanation, M. Chauvenet."

"If it should, I shall call upon you my dear fellow!"

"Save yourself the trouble! The bureau I employed to investigate the matter could assist you much better. All I could offer would be copies of its very thorough reports. The number of cups of coffee your friend Durand drank for breakfast this morning at his lodgings in Vienna will reach me in due course!"

"You are really a devil of a fellow, John Armitage! So much knowledge!"

Armitage pointed down the road with his riding crop.

So acute an intellect! "You are too wise to throw away your life fruitfully."

"You have been most generous in sparing it thus far," laughed Armitage, and Chauvenet took instant advantage of his change of humor.

"Perhaps—perhaps—I have pledged my faith in the wrong quarter, monsieur. If I may say it, we are both fairly clever men; together we could achieve much!"

"So you would sell out, would you?" laughed Armitage. "You miserable little blackguard, I should like to join forces with you! Your knack of getting the poison into the right cup every time would be a valuable asset. But we are not made for each other in this world. In the next—who knows?"

"As you will, I dare say you would be an exacting partner."

"All of that, Chauvenet! You do best to stick to your present employer. He needs you and the like of you—I don't! But remember—if there's a sudden death in Vienna in a certain high quarter you will not live to reap the benefits. Charles Louis ruins Austria-Hungary. His cousin, your friend Francis, is not of kindly proportions. I advise you to cable the amiable Durand of a dissolution of partnership. It is now too late for you to call at Judge Claiborne's, and I shall trouble you to walk on down the road for ten minutes. If you look round or follow me, I shall certainly turn you into something less attractive than a pillar of salt. You do well to consult your watch. Forward!"

Armitage pointed down the road with his riding crop. As Chauvenet walked slowly away, swinging his stick, Armitage turned toward the hotel. The shadow of night was falling on the hills, and it was quite dark when he found Oscar and the horses.

He mounted, and they rode through the deepening April dusk, up the winding trail that led out of Storm valley.

JUDGE BURTON

GOES FAST MILE AT PITTSBURG, IS REPORT.

One of Tully's Famous String That Raced Here, Goes in 2:09 1/4.

"Judge Burton," the good trotter that was owned several years ago by the Tully Livery company, made a mark of 2:09 1/4 a few days ago according to information received by Mr. Wynn Tully. Mr. Tully raced "Judge Burton" on the local track in many matinee races. At a good price the horse was sold to E. S. McKinley, of Louisville, but now the trotter belongs to a stable in Pittsburgh. The horse is seven years old, and the mark is quite a record.

TO GET $5,000 FROM ASHES.
 Carpet in San Francisco Mint Will Be Burned By Government.

Washington, Sept. 3.—A requisition has come to the treasury department from the San Francisco mint, asking that a new carpet be placed in the adjusting room, as the one there now has worn out after ten years' service. In ordinary instances such a requisition would excite no unusual interest on the part of the treasury officials, but in this case great care has to be taken in removing the old carpet for it has become more valuable with each day's service because it is literally lined with gold dust. The old carpet will be burned, and it is expected that between $4,000 and $5,000 will be realized from the ashes. In the adjusting room at San Francisco files are used to trim the surplus gold from the rough pieces. The gold is first run off in blanks and then stamped, so that it frequently happens that a piece is a little overweight or uneven. The files are then brought into play, and although no particle of gold dust large enough to be readily detected by the eye is allowed to escape, the greatest care can not always avoid the falling of some small filings to the carpet.

WEAR STRAW HATS IN LOUISVILLE TO SEPT. 15.
 Louisville, Ky., Sept. 3.—Under the usages following an ancient custom in Louisville, yesterday was the last day on which a straw hat could be worn with personal safety on Main street, the principal wholesale district of the city, but owing to the fact that a number of merchants had recently purchased new hats, a delegation called on Mayor James G. Grinnard, late in the afternoon, and urged him to issue a proclamation extending the time for wearing the summer adornment. The mayor, after hearing the petitioners, decided the matter came within the jurisdiction of the police, and referred his petitioners to Chief Hager. The chief, after hearing the complaint of the men, issued a proclamation to his captains, extending the time until Sept. 15.

Preparing to Push Suits On Constitutionality.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 3. (Special)—Representatives of the State University and the State Normal Schools were here today arranging for the suit which will be filed to test the constitutionality of the act appropriating $500,000 to the three institutions and increasing their annual allowances. The suit is to be filed within the next few days in the Franklin Circuit Court, and will be advanced as rapidly as possible, so that the Court of Appeals can be reached in a short time.

Judge Jerro Sullivan, of Richmond; P. W. Grinstead, of Lexington, and Prof. Patterson, president of the State University, were here today. ### PRICE MUST STAND TRIAL.

Cotton Leak Indictments of 1905 Not Quashed.

New York, Sept. 3.—Judge Hough in a decision filed in the United States circuit court denied the motions made in behalf of Theodore H. Price and Moses Haas to quash the indictments charging them with conspiracy to defraud the United States and to bribe a government officer in the procuring of advance information concerning the cotton report of 1905.
Judge Hough also overruled a demurrer entered by Haas, in which it was asserted that proof had been shown at the investigation. The motions to quash the indictments were made upon the claim that the constitutional rights of Price and Haas had been violated by calling them as witnesses before the grand jury.

He entered the place and at his request both records were reproduced. His own remarks were heard first, and as the last word died away he smilingly remarked: "I am now convinced."

CHINESE SPY RUNS WILD.

Finally Landed in Chicago—Had the Plans of Ports.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Charles Lee, a Chinaman, said to be an international spy, working with the Chinese and Japanese governments, became violently insane in the waiting room of the La Salle street passenger station. In his delirium he attacked an assistant city physician, Dr. J. J. Mahoney, and menaced the lives of scores of others waiting for trains.

Policeman Martin, employed by the Lake Shore railroad, grappled with the crazed passenger without result. "Her imperial majesty, the empress, will certainly make you pay well for this," shrieked Lee, according to Wung Hung, a Chicago Chinaman, who was called into the controversy.

Policemen took charge of Lee. They found upon the infuriated Chinaman the plans of all the western coast defenses, including location of guns and submarine mines.

S.S.S. HEALS SORES AND ULCERS

Sores and Ulcers are indications of impure blood. They show that the circulation has become infected with germs and poisons, which are being constantly discharged into the open place to irritate the delicate nerves, tissues and surrounding flesh and keep the sore in a state of inflammation and disease. Whether these impurities in the blood are the result of some debilitating sickness, an old taint from a former disease, or whether it is hereditary bad blood, there is but one way to cure sores and ulcers, and that is to purify the blood. Washes, salves, lotions, etc., are often beneficial because of their cleansing, antiseptic effects, but nothing applied to the surface can reach the blood, where the real cause is, and therefore cannot cure. S. S. S. is the remedy for sores and ulcers of every kind. It gets down to the very bottom of the trouble and removes every trace of impurity or poison, and makes a lasting cure. S. S. S. changes the quality of the circulation, so that instead of feeding the diseased parts with impurities, it nourishes and heals the irritated, inflamed flesh and causes the ulcer to fill in with healthy tissue by supplying it with pure, rich blood. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired sent free to all who write.

SEEKS LIGHT ON WOMEN'S CLUB

Wife of Reform Writer Sarts Inquiry as to Their Usefulness.

Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—Whether or not women's clubs ought really to exist is a question that Mrs. Rudolph Backenbush, wife of a noted reform writer of this city, has set herself to solve. She expects an affirmative solution.

In pursuance of her quest Mrs. Backenbush has sent letters to club women all over the country requesting replies to these questions:

"What good are women's clubs?"
"What have they done?"
"Do women come together in clubs for anything but sound intercourse and trivial discussions?"

The answers to these queries will be laid before two large assemblies of women's clubs which are to be held in Pittsburgh in October. They will, it is believed, bring out the fact that important acts of legislation have been effected in recent years through the instrumentality of organized bodies of women.

The salutary laws regulating child labor in factories enacted by the Pennsylvania legislature, as well as usually important enactments relating to employment bureaus and the hours of workingwomen, are largely attributable to the influence of women united in the membership of clubs.

CAMPAIGN GIFTS SHY, BOTH AGREE

Democrats Living Hand to Mouth With Fund.

Walter Wellman Describes Hard Work of Hustling "Advisory" Committees.

G. O. P. IS NO BETTER OFF

Both of the national campaign committees find it hard work to raise money this year, says Walter Wellman. Both find it necessary to cut their cloth accordingly and plan for relatively small expenditures. The Democrats are virtually living "from hand to mouth." They started in with about $60,000, unexpected balance of enterprising Denver's $100,000 convention fund. Up to date they have taken in an additional sum of about $25,000, and the aggregate of a large number of small subscriptions, raised chiefly by Democratic newspapers in the South and West.

The programme which the Democratic managers have laid out calls for a total expenditure of about $500,000, but they have no idea where the money is coming from. One thing they will not be able to do, and that is to send money to the doubtful states. It is probable neither committee will be able to do this. In the old days Indiana and all the other debatable states made heavy drafts upon the national committee. That part of the game is virtually played out. If the local managers in a state feel the sure need of money this year the probabilities are they will have to find it at home or go without.

Republican Troubles.

The Republican managers are having their troubles, too. They have in hand a small but comfortable sum, contributed chiefly by Charles P. Taft and a few other individuals. But they have in pocket or in sight much less than usual at this stage of the campaign, and like their rivals of the other committee do not know where the bulk of it is found which they need to come from.

Individuals are slow in coming to the front with their offerings, and great efforts are being made by the managers of both parties to tap the bank accounts of their friends and well-wishers. For this purpose "advisory committees" are being formed. It is an honor, of course, to serve as an "advisor" to Candidate Taft or Bryan or to Chairman Hitchcock or Mack, but the duties consist chiefly of offering suggestions in the form of checks and in hustling around to get such suggestions from others. Up to date no great rush to serve on these committees has been observed among either Republicans or Democrats.

Up to a week ago not more than twelve or fifteen men, all told, had made subscriptions to Treasurer Sheldon's little pot.

There is one good thing about the campaign fund question as it presents itself this year—both sides agree that they will have to get along with relatively small war chests, and they agree furthermore that money cuts less and less figure in national elections as the years roll by.

SCENES IN CAIRO

The Funny Things One Sees

in Smiling Round the World

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

A first drive in Cairo is a joy—the objects of interest are so unceasing and so replete with historical meaning. The first thing to stir one's memory is the opera house, built in six weeks, so there might be a fitting home of song for the company of great French singers brought over by the royal spendthrift Ismail to assist in the gorgeous celebration attending the opening of the Suez canal.

Here was given the first performance of Verdi's opera "Aida," written expressly for the occasion. The performance was further unique from the fact that Mariette Bey, the great Egyptologist and discoverer of the Rosetta stone, gave his attention to the production, so that every detail scenery, costume and plot was historically correct, while the Egyptian museum was ransacked for properties and jewels. It was probably the greatest stage production ever seen, or that ever could be given, and was only possible at a time when Ismail spent $21,000,000 on the celebration attending the opening of the canal that was, first and last, his country's ruin.

In the Monsi, as well as other characteristically native streets on the way to the bazaars, every phase of life may be seen. Open shops, scarcely six feet across, with imperturbable proprietors smoking waterpipes, a constant procession through the streets of donkeys, carts loaded with veiled women, camels treading stealthily, one of which was seen daintily nibbling at the flowers on the Parisian bonnet of the lady in a victoria just ahead.

Flocks of geese and turkeys might be seen driven along the street by vendors, who guide them with a little switch, keeping them under perfect control.

Very laughable is the rivalry between the keepers of the bazaars and the denunciation that fills the ear of the foreigner as he stops to make a purchase. The strange medley of tongues and the stranger pronunciation of his own language makes the buyer stare and then double up with laughter.

If he selects an article from the stand of the merchant on his right the proprietor of the stand on his left will shriek in his ear: "No buy of heem! Heem verra bad man! Heem tie! Heem ladder tie! Heem mudder tie! Heem granfador tie! Heem granmudder tie! No buy of heem!" While the imperturbable proprietor on the right will respond in a low guttural, like a bass solo following a soprano cadenza: "Heem big lar! Heem go jall! Heem got nothing! Me got elphery-ting! Look you! Shumakkin kip (smoking cap), packet snif (pocket snuff), booble-booble (bubble-bubble), or water pipe, preera-beed (prayer beads, or rosary)." Then, with a shout of triumph: "Shippers all! Shippers! nooch! Beada shippers! Silka shippers! Golda shippers! Me got all! Heem big lar! Heem go jall!" and so on ad infinitum.

By which my reader will perceive that shopping in Cairo is not all of heaven, nor yet of the other place, and that the amenities are much subordinate to that love which is the root of all evil.

A wedding is quite likely to follow next in the wonderful street procession. First a clown or mountebank, dancing, grimacing, rolling in the dirt, going through all sorts of antics for the amusement of the people. He is followed by men playing on a collection of shrieking and wailing musical instruments. Then comes the bride, sometimes in a closely-shuttered velvet, or what is much more picturesque, a curtained litter slung between two camels. After her comes the furniture for her new home, for a bride is expected to provide everything, even to the bridegroom's trousseau. This plenishing is all piled on camels, who so away along, sneering superciliously as if deploring the foolishness of these human customs. A camel's expression of conscious superiority must be rather trying, if one sees much of it.

It seems almost a waste of time to have so much ceremony attend so easily dissolved a relation as marriage is in Cairo. A man, with or without any just cause, has only to say before witnesses, "Woman, I divorce thee!" and repeat it three times, and he is as free as before he married her. "He has to return to her her house plenishing and she returns her dowry to him. This dowry consists of one-third of a man's possessions, which he settles on her when he marries her.

According to the Mohammedan faith a man may have four wives, that is, all to one, as they say in the west. He may divorce and re-marry, still keeping to his allowance of four, as many times as he likes.

All these sights, and many more may be seen during a drive to see the dancing, or more properly, whirling dervishes, who dance every Friday afternoon. Friday is the Mohammedan Sunday, and in the afternoon they conduct this performance, which is a religious ceremony, but palpably worked up for the benefit of the hundreds of tourists who flock to see it.

The performance takes place on an inclosed circular floor, with rugs about the edge, upon which at the beginning the dervishes, to the number of about 16, sit, wrapped in big black cloaks and wearing tall felt hats. The sheik, in a green turban, sits on a rug of extra elegance, with the koran on a cushion in front of him. A solo on a wailing flute opened the performance, piercing squeals and breathless trills putting our nerves and teeth on edge, until an unseen man in the balcony cuts it short by beginning to intone in a high-pitched voice a long incantation about a young person by the name of Mail; at least her name was all we heard. After that the dervishes arose, cast their cloaks on the ground, and stood revealed in white robes, with exceedingly full skirts, from under which their bare feet peeped out.

Then they began a solemn procession about the space, bowing to their neighbors either way as they reached the rug of the sheik. This was done three times, the men walking and bowing, not without grace and dignity. Suddenly, as the third round was completed, the first man flung out his arms and began to spin round and round, his skirts standing away stiffly from his limbs. One could not but expect to see him suddenly duck, his skirts billowing up around him, as little girls do when they play the game of "making cheeses." Momentarily he was joined by others, until the ring became filled with whirling figures, each holding its arms and head in some distinctive position, some going about sedately in one spot, while others plouretted airily in and out among the other dancers.

One man had his arms held out in a singularly appealing manner, while his head was cuddled down on his shoulder, giving him a ridiculously coy expression.

This is the last act, for after about 15 minutes of this whirling the dervishes cease, resume their cloaks and the performance is over.

From there we were driven to see the howling dervishes, a different denomination who conduct their religious worship on different lines.

The commercial instinct of this sect seems more highly developed than that of the other, for here the sum of two pence was charged for admittance. As we entered the door a great volume of sound greeted us and rose and fell like the sound of men's voices chanting.

"Here was another inclosed circular space, another venerable sheik in green urban and about 20 dervishes seated around the rail, all chanting: 'Allah il Allah!' their bodies swaying from side to side as they shouted the assertion that 'God is God' over and over again.

They next stood up and swaying back and forth, convulsively emitted gusty sighs that gradually grew into horrible noises as leader after leader sprang in front of them, setting the pace faster and faster, a new leader taking the place of the exhausted one as he turned and bowed to the sheik, signifying that he could do no more. All this time a blind sheik chanted unceasingly in a high peccolo voice.

The bodies swayed and jerked more and more quickly, the noises grew to frenzied howls and animal-like sounds that reminded one forcibly of the zoo at feeding time. A tall, gaunt desert priest stepped in front of the men, bowing and swaying, his long hair alternately covering his face and tossed back over his shoulders.

Under his leadership the dervishes became frantic, their eyes were glazed, foam flew from their lips and some fell prone from exhaustion. We stayed to see no more, but hurried out, followed by the volume of inhuman cries and howls.

The assessor shall keep his office open, and be himself or have a deputy in attendance during the hours from eight a. m. to six p. m., or such other additional hours as may by ordinance be fixed, from the fifteenth day of September to and including the first day of October, excepting Sundays and legal holidays. The assessor shall constantly keep on hand, and furnish to persons lawfully requiring the same, all necessary blanks and forms for the lists and statements required by this act. Nothing herein shall, however, prevent the assessor from assessing from the best information he can gather, and where an assessment has been made against a person who has had actual notice to appear and list his property or make statements thereof and fails to do so, the same shall not be decreased, but may be increased by board of equalization. If any person refuse to attend when summoned, or to be sworn to answer, or to answer any question propounded to him by the assessor or his deputy, the assessor or deputy may, in writing, under oath, state the question, the refusal to answer it, and ask the police judge to issue a warrant against such person; and if the question appear to be a proper one, the said judge shall issue a warrant, and the said person shall, on conviction of having refused to answer the question, it being found by the court to be a proper one, be fined ten dollars, and there compelled by proceeds of contempt to answer the question, and such proper questions as the assessor may propound to him. The assessor shall assess personal property in a separate book, in which he shall separate tangible from intangible property. The word person as used herein shall mean natural and artificial persons, and the duties enjoined on them shall in the case of artificial persons, be performed by the chief officer or agent in the city at the time. Whenever the assessor shall ascertain that there has in any former year or years, been any property omitted which should have been taxed, he shall assess the same against the person who should have been assessed with it, if living, if not, against his representatives. (See sec. 2984a, which provides for assessment of franchisees.)

All persons owning property of any kind, real or personal, in the City of Paducah, are required to come to the Assessor's office at the City Hall and sign their property lists for assessments, which are now ready for 1909.

ALLIANCE WITH
CHINA IS DREAMReports Said to Have Had

State Department Officials Say Story of Protest Against Fleet Is Absurd.

JAPANESE SCARE IS SCOUTED.

Washington, Sept. 3.—Several passing events—the gossip of Peking to the effect that Minister Wu Ting Fang is to be recalled from Washington, the visit of the Japanese Ambassador Takahira to President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay and to Secretary Root at his summer home, among others—have given rise to many erroneous reports, some of them ridiculous and some of them in the opinion of our diplomatic experts—positively mischievous.

If one were to place reliance on surmises and alleged statements of fact regarding far eastern questions which have been given wide circulation during the last few weeks, one would attribute the peregrinations of Baron Takahira to concern over a threatened alliance between the United States and China or associate them with protests against an overwhelming display of American naval strength in the Pacific, or both. By the same token the reported contemplated recall of Minister Wu would be associated with deep schemes involving the relations between this country and the Orient.

From an authority in the state department, which is the peer of any when it comes to intimate inside knowledge of world politics, was gleaned some common regarding matters which have excited recent comment. Considering first the latest report—that indicating the recall of Minister Wu—it may be said that the state department has not received the slightest intimation that the Chinese government is contemplating a change in its legation here. Of course, there might be a change without such intimation being given to our state officials in advance, but, as was pointed out, Minister Wu has not done anything that is indiscreet, and he is regarded as a diplomat who does much for the interests of his own government. There is no dissatisfaction with Dr. Wu here and no reason is seen to account for dissatisfaction with him in China. The breezy Chinese minister does not say many of the things put into his mouth. He is extremely open and free with interviewers, and some interviewers take liberties with his good nature.

The widely exploited American-Chinese alliance is branded at the state department as one of the most ridiculous inventions brought to its attention for some time. Remission of the indemnity due this country from China as a result of the Boxer uprising several years ago, and the fact that China is using part of that money to send students in large numbers to get the benefit of American education and professional training, formed a basis for a prospective "alliance" which had a plausible existence in the minds of a great many. But an alliance means something more serious than indicated by first thought. It means an offensive and defensive agreement looking to the eventuality of war which may confront either country. It is far different from a trade agreement or a treaty of the usual character; and treaties and trade agreements will be made between the countries concerned when their respective statesmen and diplomats can see mutual advantage therein. But no entangling alliances.

As pointed out at the state department, the reason why an alliance with China is absurd may be found in the farweld address of President more than a century ago. Washington's policy of not entangling alliances with foreign nations is the policy of the present administrations.

In the immediate future. To remain on good terms with all nations is the aim of those entrusted at present with the guidance of American destinies, and an alliance such as proposed with China would be a step toward strained relations with other countries. At the same time, without any alliance this government can maintain a vigorous policy with respect to the open door and the integrity of the Chinese Empire.

Baron Takahira's visits to President Roosevelt and Secretary Root are not so mysterious to keen observers here as some sensation-seekers would make them out. Two matters, according to views expressed, rendered it opportune for the Japanese Ambassador to confer with the President and head of the state department. One matter is the near approach of the American battle ship fleet in Japanese waters, which will render necessary a certain understanding with regard to the ceremonial attached to the reception that is to be accorded our sailors. It is believed that the Japanese government desired its representative at Washington to lay these plans before the American authorities.

The other matter of importance was the postponement of the Japanese International exposition from 1912 to 1917.

HALF NOT TOLD

OF THE NIGHT RIDERS' OPERATIONS.

Says County Attorney Krone, of Lyon County, in a Letter to the Courier-Journal.

W. L. Krone, of Eddyville, county attorney of Lyon County, writes a letter to the Courier-Journal in regard to the night rider troubles in western Kentucky, which throws some light on the situation in Lyon county and elsewhere. Mr. Krone's letter is, in part, as follows:

"The newspapers have never got half of the crimes that have been committed in this part of the state. Many of the foulest and gravest acts of lawlessness have never reached the press.

"I noticed in the Courier-Journal recently the report of the burning of Moss Dodds' barn, which was sent from Eddyville, and it said that the burning was accidental. Moss Dodds was a grand juror at the recent term of court and he and K. P. Brasher were the only two out of the twelve that would not take up the matter of investigation of the circuit judge and commonwealth's attorney and make a favorable report as to their standing, and for that reason I believe that 'night riders' went just a few (in number) quietly and set fire to Dodds' barn, since Dodds says that he was up at 12 o'clock at night and nothing had happened, then when he got up at daybreak the barns and twenty-one loads of hay had burned.

"The soldiers preclude the possibility of large bands of 'night riders' any more, but they are doing their work, as they go in small numbers. They can never be punished in this county with the present system of practice. What I mean is that they will have to be tried out of the county or a jury will have to come from some county not infected with 'night riders,' as they will overawe the jury if, indeed, it is possible to get a jury in the county a part of whom are not members of the bands. I write you this as an expression of my appreciation of your writing and to give you this further information regarding the situation in this county.

"Very respectfully,

"W. L. KRONE."

Aged 106, Takes Wife; Shocks Five Generations.

New York, Sept. 3.—Although he has reached the good old age of 106 years, and has been married a couple of times before, Rabbi Burnet Wolinsky of 233 Thattford avenue, Brownsville, has taken to himself a third wife, much to the surprise of his children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, great-great-grandchildren, and his great-great-great-grandchildren.

The rabbi's latest wife was Mrs. Shimen R. Shinsky, widow of a former friend of the old gentleman. About one year ago Mr. Shinsky died and his widow went to the Rabbi's home to keep house for him. She was 70 years old, but in the eyes of the rabbi she looked to be only a girl and after a short courtship he won her for his bride.

As soon as his proposal of marriage was accepted Wolinsky and the bride-to-be hurried to the marriage license bureau and procured the necessary papers.

It is asserted by some of the rabbi's closest friends that he had given his age as 69, when obtaining the license, but he says that he never was ashamed of his age.

The old gentleman has somewhere in the neighborhood of 175 living descendants in Russia and the United States. His great-grandchildren, nephews, nieces and other relatives are thinking of having a family reunion on his 110th birthday.

HERDS CATTLE IN RUNABOUT.
Washington Man Drives Horse to Death—Arrested as Insane.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 3.—Following a night spent in herding cattle with a valuable stallion attached to a gaudy runabout, Edward Schneider, 25 years old, of Washington, was taken in charge this morning and lodged in the Macon county jail apparently insane. The stallion, lashed in a thousand places with a whip, the remnants of which were found in the buggy, is dead.

Schneider was in Decatur Saturday where he purchased the horse and a new runabout and started for Springfield. Tenants on a farm near this city were aroused early this morning by the sound of cattle running in a field. Investigating they found Schneider driving the stallion trying to corral the cattle in a corner of the pasture.

Covered with mud and his clothing torn to shreds the man was captured by the farm hands.

"I am a grand success. At last I have made my mark," he asserted over and over again.

A brother, Charles Schneider, of Waukegan, Ill., will take charge of him.

Aged Lothario.

Jackson, Tenn., Sept. 3.—Something which appears to be a scandalous elopement of an aged Lothario with a woman almost young enough to be his grand-daughter, has just been made public. The elopement, if elopement it was, took place nearly three weeks ago. The facts in the case, as told a Sun reporter by Mrs. Kell, the wife of the missing man, are as follows: On Sunday, August 16, J. L. Kell, 72 years old, left with Mrs. Belle Johnson and her six-year-old daughter, Bessie Lee, ostensibly to accompany them as far as Henderson, Tenn., on their way to Corinth, Miss. This is the last that has been seen or heard of Kell or his companions, and the facts leading up to his prolonged absence indicate that it was premeditated.

BRYAN SPEAKS AT SIOUX CITY

Senator Penrose and Powder
King Dupont Denounced.

Roosevelt Has Not Succeeded in Sending a Single Magnate to Prison.

TRUSTS ARE MORE NUMEROUS

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 3.—Addressing a monster Democratic rally here last night, Bryan, in the course of a speech on the tariff, the guarantee of bank deposits, the labor and trust questions and governmental reforms, denounced Coleman Dupont, of Delaware, and Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, members of the Republican executive committee, as not being expected to become reformers, because, as is charged, of their affiliation with the trusts. Especial attention was given to the reform and trust questions.

Having traveled the entire night through Minnesota and a part of Iowa where he received enthusiastic receptions all along the line, Bryan arrived here early last night. From the rear platform of the train at various points in both states he shook the hands of hundreds of persons and made several talks, but the chief of these was at Alton, Iowa, where he discussed at some length the tariff and guaranty of bank deposits.

He again charged Taft with not being satisfied with the Republican platform and with being forced to continually amend it.

At the station here to meet the Nebraska were Mayor Sears, State Committeeman Beck, former Mayor Quick, Judge Van Kegenen and many other leading Democrats. As he alighted he was cheered by thousands of people and the enthusiasm continued as he rode along the streets to the hotel.

Discussing the question of reforms Bryan declared that the Republican party was not in a position to reform anything. He then referred personally to Dupont and Penrose, the first of whom he said "is today a defendant in a suit for conspiracy in violation of the anti-trust law brought by the United States government, and which is still pending," while Penrose "is intimately connected with all the great corporations of his state."

Bryan asserted that there were more trusts now in the United States than there were eleven years ago. "Not only this," he said, "but with the most strenuous Republican you ever have had in the white house, he has not succeeded in putting one trust magnate in the penitentiary."

BLAMES RIDERS

AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY
OFFICIAL MAKES STATEMENT.

Loss to Lexington—Concern Wants to Sell Warehouse at Less Than Cost.

Louisville, Sept. 3.—That the American Tobacco company is desirous of disposing of all their holdings in the city of Lexington because of present and past conditions which have existed in the state of Kentucky over the tobacco question, is the substance of a statement made by F. R. Toewater, the head of the country leaf department of the company, who was at the Seelbach hotel.

"The company owns two large warehouses in Lexington, one with a capacity of 15,000,000 pounds of tobacco and the other that will hold 5,000,000 pounds, which they are willing to sell at less than cost to anyone who will take them off its hands."

"Through a recent order from New York, it was decided that the country leaf department of the company should be moved from Lexington, where it has been located for a number of years, to Cincinnati. I am now on my way back to Lexington from Cincinnati, where I have been selecting a suitable location for my headquarters. I will go back to Lexington and will then move to Cincinnati as soon as possible."

The question was asked Mr. Toewater if the night rider conditions in the state had caused the company to make the change. His reply was: "The conditions existing in the state of Kentucky has caused the company to make this change."

The taking of this department from Lexington will mean the cutting off of an annual disbursement of money through that city of several million dollars. This department bought and paid for white burley tobacco in several states, including West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

GIRLS FRIGHTENED

BY STRANGE NEGRO, WHO RAN AFTER THEM.

Were on Their Way to Basket Factory
When They Saw Him and Fled.

All yesterday afternoon Patrolman

Casper Jones and William H. Simmons searched the woods in the vicinity of the Union station for an unknown negro, who frightened Earl Biggart and Beulah Simmons, basket makers at the Paducah Box and Basket company. Beulah Simmons lives at 1031 Lincoln avenue and Earl Biggart resides at 1016 Lincoln avenue.

The two girls started to work about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and when around the curve a short distance from the Union station a strange negro raised up from the weeds near a swimming hole and made some remark. The girls began running and the negro, dressed only in a shirt, followed a short distance. The girls were badly frightened.

At once Patrolman Jones started on an investigation, and he was joined by William H. Simmons, one of the girls' father, who carried a double-barreled shotgun. The men found where some one had been in the weeds, but a thorough search failed to locate him.

LOCAL OPTION PETITION
IN MANY OHIO COUNTIES.

Columbus, O., Sept. 3.—The Rose county local option law went into effect today. The Anti-Saloon league announces that petitions were started in 28 counties in the state for an election to oust the saloons from these counties. Bank petitions had all been prepared, and men and women picked out to begin the work at once.

The law requires that 35 per cent of the voters shall petition before an election is held. The petitions can be filed with the probate judge or the county commissioners. The 28 counties selected for the first tests under the new law have a total of about 1,000 saloons.

FORAKER AND TAFT FRATERNIZE AND NOW IT'S ALL OFF IN OHIO WITH DISCORD

Senator, Who Gave Presidential Candidate First Appointment, is for Him.

Toledo, Sept. 3.—That Taft and Foraker are politically together is not only the public admission of both Taft and Foraker, but also the political sensation of Ohio.

Foraker is an avowed candidate for the United States senate to succeed himself and his services in the national campaign have been sought by National Chairman Hitchcock and the senator has promised to take the stump.

At a dinner given here by Charles T. Lewis, who is incidentally the host of Taft at the Middle Bass club, Senator Foraker was one of the prominent men present. This dinner resulted in an invitation to Foraker to remain in the city and attend both the review of the Grand Army parade in the stand with Taft, but also a reception to be given later by the Lincoln Republican club.

Foraker Asked to Speak.
Those who attended this dinner are authority for the further statement that when Foraker left the dinner he was called on the long distance telephone from Chicago by Chairman Hitchcock, of the national committee, and requested to open the Republican campaign in Kansas. Foraker has not as yet given his answer, but it is said that he told the national chairman he would take part in the speaking program in the contest.

Taft arrived in the city at 10:30 and went direct to the reviewing stand. After the candidate had been in his place only a few minutes, the carriage which headed the parade stopped in front of the stand and discharged its passengers. There was a tremendous shout as the thousands within sight of the stand caught sight of the senior senator.

Taft and Foraker Meet.

Foraker was the last of the party to reach Taft's side, but when he did and each raised his right hand. Taft saying, "Hello, Senator" and Foraker, "I'm glad to see you, Judge," and then shook hands long and heartily, and smiled decidedly cordially, there was a mighty shout from the crowd, and then applause and then cheers. The two sat down together and remained in earnest conversation for more than an hour, incidentally together receiving the plaudits of the marching veterans.

Foraker left to keep a business engagement and Taft remained till the four-hour parade had passed.

Before Taft was allowed to depart he consented to shake hands for twenty minutes with the enthusiastic throng. Then he went to the Lyceum theater, where, when Taft had been cheered for a few minutes by the audience, Foraker made his appearance. He was also most enthusiastically greeted as he took his seat beside the candidate, after the latter had risen and greeted him with a handshake.

And then the speech-making began. President Muhlenberg introduced Taft as "The World's Big Man" and many more complimentary phrases.

Judge Taft was again the subject of demonstration. After a few pleasantries with the audience Taft said:

Taft Lands Foraker.
"It is a pleasure for me to be here with Senator Foraker, because when the governor of Ohio he gave me really my first chance and took a good deal of risk in putting a man of 29 on the bench of the superior court of Cincinnati. We are about to enter, or rather have entered, a great oratorical campaign. It is a pleasure to thing in this presence that we are going to stand in the campaign shoulder to shoulder, with the full strength of the Republican party."

Mr. Taft here went directly to a political argument, in which he repeated what he had said on his trip through Ohio last week, and the real issue of the campaign was whether the voters of the country would give endorsement to the Roosevelt policies and deeds of the Republican party or turn to the Democratic party with its untried promises.

He reviewed the tariff question, spoke of present restoration to prosperity, and took a rap at the Democratic party.

After a most glowing endorsement of Taft by Bishop Samuel Fallows, of the reformed Episcopal church, of Chicago, Foraker was introduced and was received with decided cordiality.

Foraker Taft's Friend.
Foraker began by scoring the press to the extent of saying that there came near being a tragedy in his absence from the meeting during the first ten minutes of its duration, because the newspaper correspondents were preparing dispatches announcing the confirmation of the feud and bad feeling existing between Taft and myself." He continued:

"Under the circumstances I hope I may be pardoned if I say here in this presence—the first time I have had opportunity to say it—that there is nothing, so far as I know, not the slightest ill-feeling of any kind between Taft and myself."

Always a Republican.

"And if there had been, you could not lose me that way. If there is anything I have a right to claim beyond another it is that I am a Republican three hundred and sixty-five days in the year. I have my preferences sometimes as to who should receive the honors of the party, and everybody generally finds out what they are. But I am one of those old-fashioned Republicans who settled every such question at the convention. When the Chicago convention nominated Taft to be the Republican candidate for president this year, that instant he became my leader. He has been my leader ever since, and he will be my leader until the polls close on the night of the election."

Foraker then turned his attention to the issue with the conclusion that the great issue would be found to be "whether the administration of the public affairs of this country shall be turned over to the Democratic party with Bryan at its head, or continued in the hands of the Republican party."

The One Best Man.

Foraker estimated Taft's fitness for the presidency by declaring "that by his experience on the bench, in the Philippines, as secretary of war, in the construction of the Panama canal, in all the positions he has filled, has been such as to qualify Taft almost beyond every other man for the presidency. We are going to elect him if he does not make a success of it. It will be his own fault."

Senator Foraker followed this statement with a review of his early acquaintance with Judge Taft, and the favorable impression he then gained of him.

Senator Foraker, before concluding intimated that the campaign was to be a real fight, but he predicted Taft's success.

Dick Talks for Foraker.

Senator Dick, who followed, agreed with what had been said about Taft. "But I want to say," he added, "that it will be a great loss to Ohio, to the country and to the senate if Joseph B. Foraker is not returned."

After a speech by Governor Harris and a public reception, Taft went to the dock and at once began his return journey to Middle Bass Island.

PREACHER SKIPS OUT WITH HIS WIFE'S SISTER.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 3.—The Rev. William Cummings, who has been officiating for the summer, at Elk Rapids, Mich., was arrested here on a non-support warrant issued in Ionia county, where his wife's parents are prominent residents at Clarksville. The pastor disappeared August 6 and the same day his wife's sister, Miss Velma Taylor, 20 years old, was reported missing. Miss Taylor was located in a boarding house here and through her Cummings was discovered working in a local laundry. When the minister left for Ionia in charge of officers, Miss Taylor went with them. The couple had been living here two weeks.

Caught in the waves from a steamer, the gasoline launch, "Laughing Water," with a party of Illinois Central shop employees, had a perilous time last night. On the return about 10 o'clock the launch was caught in the wash from the big boat, and was rocked until the waves nearly filled the boat. Everything possible was thrown overboard while the men clung to the sides of the boat. Several times it was thought that the frail craft would be overturned, but by constantly bailing out the water they made the little launch brave the breakers and the party returned to the wharf with only a bad scare and wet clothes.

SUFFER FROM FLAMES

ONE RESIDENCE AND THREE BARN IN WADY.

Origin of the Fires Unknown, But Night Riders Are Not Believed to Have Been Implicated.

Waddy, Ky., Sept. 3.—Fire did over $5,000 damage in this neighborhood, two farmers, about five miles from here, at Harrisonburg, being the sufferers. J. D. Wyatt, one of the best known men in this section, lost his storeroom, residence and large barn, and John Snyder, living near him, had a stock and tobacco barn burned. The origin of the fire is not known, but so far as can be learned the night riders were not implicated in the flames.

DEBS HAS A BUSY DAY.
Socialist Candidate for President
Spoke at Eleven Places.

Kansas City, Sept. 3.—Eugene V.
Debs, Socialist candidate for president, arrived here and addressed a crowd of several thousand people in Convention hall. His speech was similar to those already delivered on the present tour. Stops were made by Debs' special train at Crenton,
Corning, Claridon, Burlington Junction,
Vallecia, Hepburn, Skidmore,
Mound City, Bigelow and Amazonia,
the first four scheduled and the rest because of the crowds. Debs made a short address at each point.

REPUBLICANS

Dr. J. F. Coffey, of Whitley Republican, Tells Why They Do So.

Williamsburg, Ky., Sept. 3. (Special)—The mountains are solid for Taft. The tact and foresight of such Republican leaders as Frank M.
Fisher, of Paducah, have effaced every trace of soreness over pre-nomination issues.

The party here is one. Beginning with this week the Whitley Republican, most widely circulated paper in Whitley, the banner Republican shire in the state, will nail to masthead the banner: "Make it 25,000 for Taft in the Eleventh." That telling appeal the Republican will never lower till after polling day.

Republicans here want due recognition for Kentucky's Republicanism in Washington—to be had only through cabinet representation. In the person of such a high class man, as Hon. Frank M. Fisher, of Mc-Cracken county. We want, in one word, to put Kentucky where she belongs—in the front row and in a cushioned seat.
